It has been reported here that the man who brought three pen pals to Detroit since he took charge of the team in 1916 would head another club, possibly an eastern team, next year.

INDUSTRIAL STRUGGLE IN ENGLAND ON

Government and Miners Grimly Prepare For Supreme Test of Strength.

Conference of Railroad Delegates Called for Wednesday to Determine Whether They Shall Be Sympathetic Strikers in Support of Coal Men.

OTHERS MAY JOIN FIGHT

By Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 16.—Preparations for the great industrial struggle precipitated by the miners' strike of the British coal industry to cease work went grimly forward today. The machinery established by the government to cope with the crisis was working smoothly at full speed. The miners were equally active. Some of them, notably in Derbyshire and Nottinghamshire, already have ceased work at the end of their shifts. Meanwhile the public was waiting anxiously, even fearfully, for the beginning of the battle whose outcome none could foresee since the action of the miners hits at the vitals of the country.

The issue of gravest importance was whether railroad and transportation workers would give their active support to the miners. This morning the executive committee of the national union of railwaymen decided to call a special conference of delegates for Wednesday when the decision will be made as to whether the railway men shall support the miners through a sympathetic strike. Meanwhile rail employees will remain at work.

As the day progressed and reports came up from the various coal districts that the miners were walking out at the end of their shifts and that all the work had quit in southwest Wales and in the Midlands. The miners in the Barrowley district in South Yorkshire had quit but were allowing little capital for the strike, according to reports from this region. The miners' federation announced that the strike instructions were being generally carried out. In the afternoon reports continued to come that iron and steel works either had closed or were preparing to close.

ABILITY TO SWIM SAVES GIRL SWEEPED INTO SLUICE PIPE; HER YOUNG COMPANION DROWNED

Miss Florence Rottler, formerly of this city but now of Washington, D. C., where she is employed by the Southern railroad, had a miraculous escape from death recently when she and a friend, Harold Watkins, of that city, accidentally stepped into a canal at Great Falls, near the capital, and were carried by the swift current through a three-foot pipe for a distance of more than 100 feet. Miss Rottler was able to swim to shore and was saved. The young man was drowned. When the body was recovered the skull was found to have been fractured, probably by striking some object as the water carried him through the conduit.

Miss Rottler and her friend were members of an automobile party which had motored to the falls. They were unfamiliar with the place and a misstep plunged both into the water. The current there is exceedingly swift and it drew them rapidly toward the sluice pipe. The young woman suffered a cut on the back of her head as she was carried through but retained consciousness. When she was washed out she was able to swim to shore, having taken swimming lessons during the summer. Although hand-capped by a heavy coat she reached the bank and a woman in the neighborhood heard her call for help. She was taken to the Georgetown hospital and had the wound, a five-inch cut, treated. She was able to be about after a few days. Miss Rottler is well known here having resided in the city before going to Washington. She is a graduate of the Connellsville high school. She is a daughter of Constable Barthold Rottler.

INVESTORS GETS 100,000 GAS FLOW IN THE BEREASAND

Much Excitement About Dawson Over Strike in Lower Tyrone.

FLAME 20 FEET IN THE AIR

Drilling Resumed Today. With No Change in Pressure; More Expected in Elizabeth Sand, 100 Feet Deeper; May Drill on the Speckley.

A flow of gas estimated at 100,000 cubic feet a day was struck Friday by the Investors Oil & Gas company in the well in Lower Tyrone township when the bit penetrated the Berea sand. Drilling was resumed this morning and at noon the drill was between 13 and 15 feet in the sand, with the pressure continuing the same, according to L. S. Mellinger, treasurer and general manager of the company. After the flow had been struck, about 5 o'clock in the evening, a steam line was made ready and fire applied to the gas. The flame shot about 20 feet in the air. With the use of steam it was quickly extinguished and preparations were made to resume drilling.

The Berea sand, or grit as it is called in Greene county, is 2,100 feet below the surface. It lies about 100 feet above the Elizabeth sand which the driller hopes to reach Monday or Tuesday. If a strong flow is secured there operations will be discontinued, Mr. Mellinger said, and another well begun. Otherwise drilling will be continued to the Speckley sand, down 500 feet more.

The Investors Oil & Gas is a four-well proposition, capitalized at $150,000, with 500 acres under lease. Victor Fuxy of Fairmont, W. Va., is president, and Joseph M. Riddle of Dawson, secretary. There was excitement about Dawson when the well came in.

NO-ACCIDENT DRIVE OF B. & O. BEGINS MIDNIGHT TOMORROW

Keen Hilarity Between Divisions to Win Payout for the Greatest Reduction in Number.

The No-Accident campaign of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad will open auspiciously "immediately" after midnight tomorrow and continue for a month. C. W. Morrow, vice president in charge of operation and maintenance, today sent out a message to all officers and employees urging their support in the drive, which has for its object the elimination of accidents of all kinds from railroad service. The number of employees has grown and so has the business handled. Meeting the call of the nation for greater speed in transportation, the Baltimore & Ohio employees have been working under great pressure, and this is "responsible" in great measure for the increase in casualties. But it is believed that the railroad workers can be convinced that they can work safely as well as swiftly and this is one of the prime objects of the campaign. The different divisions of this railroad have mapped out already their plans for the successful conduct of the drive. Each one is anxious to win the pennant which will go to the division making the greatest reduction in accidents as compared with the same period last year. Division officers and others in this territory are showing keen interest in the drive.

National bank to take $10,000 of the

LAXATIVE for Aged People

THE BANE of old age is constipation. The bowels become weak and unable to perform their functions without aid. For this purpose only the mildest and gentlest laxative should be used.
The use of harsh cathartics aggravates the trouble and makes the constipation worse. Chamberlain's Tablets are a favorite with people of middle age and older on account of their gentle action.

A Recipe for Making Washday a Two-Hour Pleasure

Probably, through long experience, you have learned to look ahead to washday as a tenor fifteen-hour ordeal.

We can teach you how to make it a two-hour pleasure.
Our Family Laundry Service is the recipe. We wash all your things, and iron many—leaving to you only the ironing of a few of the lighter pieces.

This, you will see, is a sort of cooperative laundry service.
And the cost is very moderate.

Our driver takes up your family bundle in the usual way at a set hour each week.
We sort everything, and wash
each article specially in a particular class—table linens only with table linens, colored goods only with colored goods, and so forth.

Next the whole wash is dried in a way that makes it as sweet as if it had been bathed in spring sunshine. The flat pieces, like towels, bed clothes and table linens, we iron. Many of the undergarments we dry so nicely that they need no ironing. Other garments, like your own skirts and the children's clothes, we starch and leave for you to iron at home when you have an hour or so to spare.

In a word we transform the work of washday into a two-hour pleasure for you. You will be surprised too, at the extreme reasonableness of the cost.

Large numbers of housewives already use our service.
It will please you as much.
Telephone and we will have our driver call for your family washing.

PRODUCTION AGAIN OVER THE 200,000 TONS WEEKLY MARK

Helpful Factors Stimulate Both Furnace and Merchant Operations.

AUGMENTED CAR SUPPLY

Removal of Transportation Obstacles, Cheaper Application of Workers and a Cheerful Feeling the Contributing Causes; A Good Week is Expected.

From The Weekly Courier.

Under the stimulus of several helpful factors furnace and merchant operations during the week ending Saturday, October 19, 1929, reached a production up and over the 200,000 tons mark, as it seemed to make amends for the recession which took place during the week preceding. A total gain of 21,983 tons, fairly divided between the furnace and the merchant, of 10,750 tons by furnace and 11,233 tons by the merchant, pushed the tonnage up to 212,160, one of the four high weekly records since the switchmen's strike in April. Compared with a year ago, when the industry was suffering from the effects of the strike, last week's production showed an increase of almost 40 per cent.

A largely augmented car supply during the latter half of the week, and somewhat greater industry and application on the part of the working forces of the mines and even yards, together with an intangible but plainly manifest and altogether cheerful feeling that things generally were going better, contributed to the larger production at both furnace and merchant.

A number of obstacles to coke exportation were removed during the week, including the lifting of the embargo laid by the Western Maryland railroad on loaded cars from points on the Pittsburgh & Lake Erie. Exchange of empty cars for loads between the Pennsylvania and the Monongahela railroads at West Brownsville was in smooth working order, vouching to the benefit of the latter in serving the plants on its lines. Progress in reducing load accumulations in the Youngwood, Rainey, West Brownsville and Pleasant yards showed that still further additions to the available tonnage of the Pennsylvania railroad is about all that system needs to prevent undue congestion at important points of traffic convergence and distribution.

Thus far all indications point to the present being a satisfactory week, considered from the producer's point of view. Car placements have been above the recent average in percentages and regularity of distribution. Employees are sticking to their jobs, some of them beginning to realize that very shortly there is going to be bidding for places as well as bidding for work. Prices have moved up from the range of a week ago and present evidence of a softening tendency. Although more coke is being produced the offerings have not perceptibly increased in volume, larger shipments contracts, having served to keep the surplus within the limits of the spot market's absorptive capacity.

The estimated production of coke during the week ended Saturday, October 19, was 212,160 tons, credited to the two districts as follows: Connellsville, 116,940; and Westmoreland, 95,220. A gain of 7,810 tons, or a total gain of 21,983 tons as compared with a loss of 12,660 tons during the preceding week.

By interests the production was: Furnace, 120,410; an increase of 10,750 tons; merchant, 91,750, an increase of 11,233 tons as compared with a decrease of 18,660 and a gain of 6,000 tons respectively during the week ended October 2.

The number of active ovens was increased by 120, 67 at furnace and 53 at merchant plants. At the large Idaho-Martin plant of the Republic Iron & Steel company 59 ovens were placed in blast. Other increases were 41 at Poland, 20 at Thompson No. 2; scattering six. A total of 31 were blown out at Hecla No. 3, Leisenring No. 3, Crystal and Clinton No. 1.

COKE TRADE SUMMARY.

Coke production was boosted over the 200,000 ton mark last week through the joint efforts of both the furnace and the merchant, which were stimulated by several helpful factors. The chief of these was a better car supply which came with the last half of the week, aided by the removal of several annoying obstacles to transportation. These included the lifting of the Western Maryland embargo on west Lake Erie loads and an uninterrupted exchange of empty cars and loads between the Pennsylvania and the Monongahela railroads, enabling the latter to better serve the important plants of the Connellsville district. The crowded condition of Youngwood, Rainey and other yards was relieved to an appreciable degree, and the movement of cars facilitated. All of these things, and the fact that the furnace and merchant were working on their jobs with more industry and cheerfulness, helped to improve the morale of the rank and file and set the special forces on their toes. The result was a gain of 21,983 tons by the furnace ovens and 11,233 tons by the merchant ovens, or a total gain of 21,983 tons, pushing the weekly tonnage up to 212,160 tons and setting one of the four high records since last April. Prices have softened up since to $17.50 for new furnace, without advances of early softening. Spot offerings have not increased with larger output, more coke being sent out on contracts.

LEGION FINDING MANY SOLDIERS REPORTED DEAD

Mother of 13th Man from Indiana Is Informed He Was Seen Alive.

In July, 1918.

Scores of cases where American soldiers are reported to have been seen by friends after being officially pronounced dead by the War Department have come to light in the American Legion's campaign to clear away the uncertainty surrounding the fate of missing sons of heartbroken parents in all parts of the United States. Such cases are prominent among the more than 2,000 unsolved mysteries of the war which the American Legion Weekly is appealing to its readers to clarify.

Fred G. Pippert sailed for France September 19, 1918, from Camp Gordon, where he was a member of Company C, Fourth Replacement Regiment. In December, 1918, his parents received official notice of his death on October 3, at Brest, France. One of the soldier's friends is reported to have seen him alive and well on October 11, 1918, the War Risk Insurance Bureau reported that he died at Camp Gordon on September 2, which is known to be incorrect. Red Cross representatives made a search of all hospitals in the United States, but found no trace of Pippert.

Anybody having information about the case is asked to forward it to Mr. and Mrs. Adam Pippert, Dysart, Pa. Their anxiety, which it is in the power of someone, somewhere, to relieve, can be best appreciated by relatives of the hundreds of other missing men whose fate has never been definitely determined.

Another case is that of Thomas C. Zehner, Company F, 110th Infantry, wounded July 29, 1918, and later reported dead. Said to have been seen alive in July, 1919. Address mother, Mrs. Charles Zehner, 1015 Philadelphia street, Indiana, Pa.

SHARP FALLING OFF IN PRODUCTION OF BITUMINOUS COAL

Weekly Production Is Still Below The 12,000,000 Tons Mark But Total Is 13,333,000 Ahead of 1919.

The production of bituminous coal fell off sharply during the week ended October 2, says the United States Geological Survey. The total output, including lignite and coal coked, is estimated at 12,345,000 net tons, a decrease when compared with the preceding week of 556,000 tons, or 4.3 per cent. For the first time since the daymen's strike of last August, the line of 1920 production has fallen below the 1919 line.

The cause of the decrease is not yet clear. Up to Thursday, September 20, loadings were proceeding at a rate in excess of the preceding week, but on Friday and Saturday they declined sharply. Analysis of the reports shows that the decrease centered in the fields north of the Ohio and Potomac.

Production during the first 231 working days of the last four years has been as follows in net tons:

1917	12,417,411
1918	12,449,231
1919	12,791,000
1920	12,345,000

The year 1920 is thus about 38,000 tons behind 1917, and about 45,000 tons behind 1918, but is 51,333,000 tons ahead of 1919.

"LOVE, HONOR AND OBEY"--An intensely interesting story is today's feature attraction. Wilda Bennett, newcomer to the screen, but one of the most popular musical comedy stars in New York, has the leading role, that of Constance Williams, a New England girl who falls in love with a New York writer, Stuart Benson (Kenneth Harlan). Her father (Henry Hume) opposes the match. A dramatic incident tears the young people apart and when Constance learns that Stuart has been named as co-respondent in a divorce suit, her heart is numbed. She consents to please her father, to become married to a crafty New Englander, and isn't until after the knot is tied that she learns from the divorcee (Clara Whitney) that she has been tricked by false information. She bolts her door on the bridegroom.

How this situation is worked out makes one of the most engrossing stories that the screen has seen in years. Miss Bennett proves a "find" for the screen, with her fresh young

CARTER AND DONNELLY MEET TONIGHT AT SLAVISH HALL

Bout Between Local Negro and Unlabeled Fighter Long Wanted.

LATROBE THIS AFTERNOON

Ring history will be made in Fayette county tonight when Billy Carter of Connellsville clashes with Johnny Donnelly of Unlabeled at the Slavish hall, West Side, ending a long-drawn-out controversy. Much interest has been shown in the encounter between the two boys. The advance sale of seats shows it is claimed, that this battle between the two rivals of nearly equal talent has been offered to the public at this vicinity.

The Carter and Donnelly bout is the first of the kind in this vicinity. Carter, who weighs in at 140 pounds at the ring, is a native of Unlabeled, and will probably be a couple of pounds under Donnelly.

Donnelly is leaving no stone unturned to effect the heavy championship of the negro as he has been himself to Akron, O., to prepare himself for the contest under the tutelage of Art Simms, the veteran lightweight of that city. Donnelly has not only placed himself under Simms but has also engaged Simms as his chief advisor when the boys clash tonight in their 10-round bout. Duke Barry has charge of the local boy.

On a par with the star bout is the eight-round semi-final between Eddie Carter of Pittsburgh and Bud Brown of Homestead. Both boys are favorably known on account of their fast brand of milling.

The opening bout between Johnny Polak of Dawson and Frank Polak of Brownsville has aroused considerable interest also. These boys recently put up one of the most exciting bouts that was ever witnessed in Unlabeled.

Special arrangements are being made for the ladies who wish to see these boys in action. The West Penn Railways company will run two special cars from Unlabeled, leaving there at 7:30 o'clock and returning about 11 o'clock. The boys should be over by 10:40 which will enable visitors from Dawson and Scottsdale to reach their homes at a reasonable hour.

The club has engaged the services of Eddie Kennedy, the ex-welterweight champion, to officiate in tonight's contest, which will insure the fans of fast and exciting bouts. (Respective of how many fans are present, the first bout will start at 8:30 o'clock sharp.)

HIGH SCHOOL RESERVES LOSE TO MOUNT PLEASANT, 16-9.
The Connellsville high school reserves were defeated 16-9 by the Mount Pleasant high school team yesterday at that place. The local reserves gave a good account of themselves, however, and gave the home varsity a good check.

Connellsville threatened to score several times but at the crucial moment something always happened the second stringers and they didn't get the ball across. The team which played was purely a scratch team, there being none of the varsity at Mount Pleasant on account of the spectators held here in preparation for today's game with Latrobe.

One score for Mount Pleasant came when the locals fumbled and another by a plunge through center. The comeback was scored when Mount Pleasant kicked off a long punt which fell as a pass over the head of the home punter but the advantage in the kick-off, on that the field was only 30 yards long.

Connellsville fans want to Fayette fight at the stadium in the hope of seeing Connellsville High wipe out part of the stigma of last Saturday's defeat by walloping Latrobe.

Next week will see steady drilling of the Cokers each night and daily. Greentown, the objective next Saturday and the Orange and Black defenders believe this is the year they can score on the Westmoreland county warriors.

Fans used to compare Hans Wagner and Nap Lajoie. Both have passed out of the game, with the question unsettled. Now up comes Babe Ruth to challenge Ty Cobb for the pre-eminence of individual leadership. It was a hard matter to determine which was the superior, Wagner or Lajoie, but there is not so much to argue over in the case of Cobb vs. Ruth. Cobb is a master mind of baseball, good in all departments; Ruth is a slugging slug, depending upon brawn to make him the greatest long-distance hitter of the time and no doubt of all times. For all around excellence, Cobb stands out as the best ball player of all time, challenged only by Wagner, Richard Guy, in Pittsburgh Leader.

HEAVYWEIGHT CROWN IS WORN BY NILLES

Carpenter Not Recognized as Champion of France.

Never Challenged for Title, Seemingly Content With Laurels He Now Has Received as Best French Boxer.

Whenever boxing fans or others discuss Georges Carpentier and the fighting game they invariably refer to him as the heavyweight champion of France. There is no doubt that he is the best boxer in all France, but the fact remains, nevertheless, that he is not the recognized heavyweight champion of Europe. Georges is the light heavyweight champion of France, while Nilles is the heavyweight champion.

It is rather embarrassing at times for Carpentier to admit that he is not heavyweight champion of his native land. Through some technicality or other, Georges never challenged or fought for the heavyweight title, and therefore does not hold it, not according to the French Federation of Boxing, and that body controls the sport in France, the same as the National Sporting club has always controlled it in England.

Hammis, a heavyweight, was the champion and he was recently defeated by Paul Journee, but this match was not for the championship, therefore Hammis still retained the title, and in turn, was defeated by Marcel Nilles, August 1, last, losing on a foul in the eighth round. That gives the heavyweight title to Nilles, although he was in France would give him a shot at a shot against Carpentier.

The latter, of course, could easily get the title by fighting Nilles or challenging, and in case the latter should decline the match, win it by default, but the chances are Carpentier will be content with the laurels he has.

CALLAHAN BROTHERS TO BATTLE EACH OTHER ON FOOTBALL FIELD

One of the most interesting features of this year's football season, from the human-interest standpoint, will be the playing of the Callahan brothers, who are explaining the Yale and Princeton teams. The day of the greatest interest will be when Yale plays Princeton and they face each other. There is the first known case where brothers captured two of the leading varsity teams. From left to right are: Capt. Harry A. Callahan of the Princeton team and Capt. John J. Callahan of the Yale eleven.

FEDERAL AID TO OBSTRUCT POOLS

President Johnson of American League Says Help of Congress is Needed.

BETTING IS RUINING GAME

Different Methods Tried to Eradicate Evil, but None So Far Has Been Effective—Nation's Sport Needs Protection.

Congress is to be asked to enact a law that will make betting on a baseball game, major or minor, a penitentiary offense.

This was announced by President Johnson of the American league, who believes that will be the only method by which gambling can be prevented from ruining the national sport. Johnson has done many big things for baseball and he hopes to be successful in this because he firmly believes federal intervention is the only method of combating the evil, writes Oscar Rateloff in Chicago News. The fact that pool bets are distributed broadcast over the country, either by mail or express, and that the telephone and telegraph lines are used in the nation wide operation of the system, lays baseball gambling, President Johnson believes, open to attack by federal law.

Sinister Forces at Work.
Many different methods of dealing with the gambling evil have been proposed in the last few years, but none that has been tried has succeeded. There have been a few arrests of men and boys at ball games, but the big menace—the pool selling—has never been attacked and remains an active and rapidly growing menace, nationwide in its scope.

"More than a year ago I asked Congressman Mann to introduce a bill that would make betting on a baseball game, major or minor, a penitentiary offense. I have since learned that the bill has been introduced and I am sure it will be passed.

Heaving coal into the furnaces of the battleship South Carolina has been the unique means by which the midshipmen of the football squad have kept in condition this summer. take up. He thought it was an affair for the separate states. Since then I have talked with several other congressmen in different parts of the country and they believe that gambling on baseball can and should be handled by the congress.

"I believe Washington should interest itself in protecting the nation's sport. Baseball is an American institution. Millions are interested in the sport and attend the games daily. They believe in the integrity of baseball and they have a right to demand that the sport which they occupy their leisure be kept clean. I shall most solemnly urge that action be taken at the next session."

President Johnson said that he has been busy engaged in collecting data on players and that he soon will be in a position to make disclosures, if there are any to be made.

THE GREAT SHADOW

By A. CONAN DOYLE

Author of "The Adventure of Sherlock Holmes"

"It's twelve to fifteen miles off," said he. "You may be sure that the general knows that we are not wanted, or we should not be resting here at all."

"What he said proved to be true, for a minute later down came the colonel with orders that we should attack arms and bivouac where we were, and there we stayed all day, while horse and foot and guns, English, Dutch and American, were streaming through the forest. The music went on all evening, sometimes rising into a roar, sometimes sinking into a grumble, until about eight o'clock in the evening it stopped altogether. We were eating our hearts out, as you may think, to know what it all meant, but we knew that what the Duke did would be for the best, so we just waited in patience.

Next day the brigade remained at Hal in the morning, but about midday came an order from the Duke, and we pushed on once more until we came to a village called Braine something, and there we stopped, and time too, for a sudden thunderstorm came on and a plump of rain that turned all the roads and the fields into bog and mire. We got into the barns at this village for shelter, and there we found two strangers, one from a killed regiment and the other a man of the German legion, who had a tale to tell that was as dreary as the weather.

Boney had thrashed the Prussians the day before, and our fellows had been sore put to it to hold their own against him, but he had been off at last. It seems an old, stale story to you now, but you cannot think how we scrambled around those two men in the barn, and pushed and fought just to catch a word of what they said, and how those who had heard were in turn mobbed by those who had not. We laughed and cheered and groaned all in turn, as we were told how the Forty-fourth had received cavalry in line, how the Dutch-Belgians had fled, and how the Black Watch had taken the leaders into their square, and then how they killed them at their leisure. But the leaders had the laugh on their side when they crumpled up the Sixty-ninth and carried off one of the colors. To read it all up, the Duke was to receive, in order to keep in touch with the Prussians, and it was rumored that he would take up his ground and fight a big battle just at the very place where we had been halted.

And now we saw that this rumor was true, for the weather cleared toward evening, and we were all out on the ridge to see what we could see. It was such a bonny stretch of corn and grazing land, with the crops just half grown and half yellow, and fine trees as high as a man's shoulder. A scene more lovely than you could ever think of, and look where you would over the low, curving, corn-covered hills, you could see the little village steeples peeping up their spires among the poplars. But, as I said, right across this pretty picture was a long wall of searching, red, and some red, some green, some blue, black, zigzagging over the plain and choosing the roads, one end so close that we could show to them as they stalked their muskets on the ridge at our left, and the other end among the woods as far as we could see. And then on other roads we saw the teams of horses toiling and the dull gleam of the guns, and the men straining and away as they helped to turn the spoked in the deep, deep mud. As we stood there, regiments after regiments and brigades after brigades took position on the ridge, and ere the sun had set we lay in a line of over sixty thousand men, blocking Napoleon's way to Brussels! But the rain had come crashing down again, and we of the Forty-fourth, as you know, were in a more secure position, where we had better quarters than the greater part of our comrades, who lay stretched in the mud, with the storm beating upon them, and the first sleep of day.

CHAPTER XII.

The shadow on the land. It was still drizzling in the morning, with brown, drifting clouds, and a dainty, chilly wind. It was a queer thing for me as I opened my eyes to think that I should be in a battle that day, though none of us ever thought it would be such a one as it proved to be. We were up and ready, however, with the first light, and as we threw open the doors of our barn we heard the noise, the music that I over-listened to playing somewhere in the distance. We all stood in clusters, leaning to it, it was so sweet and innocent and sad-like. But our sergeant laughed when he saw how it had pleased us all.

"Then are the French band," said he; "and if you come out here you'll see what some of you may not live to see again."

Oh! we went—the beautiful music still sounding in our ears, and stood on a rise just outside the barn. Down

KEMP'S BALSAM
Wet, Stop That Cough

below, at the bottom of the slope, about half a musket shot from us, was a huge field farm with a hedge and a bit of an apple orchard. All round it a line of men in red coats and high fur hats were working like bees, knocking holes in the wall and barring up the doors.

"That's the light companies of the Guards," said the sergeant. "They'll hold that farm while one of them can wag a finger. But look over yonder, and you'll see the campfires of the French."

We looked across the valley at the low ridge upon the farther side, and saw a thousand little yellow points of flame, with the dark smoke rising up slowly in the heavy air. There was another farmhouse on the further side of the valley, and as we watched we suddenly saw a little group of horsemen appear on a knoll beside it and look across at us. There were a dozen hussars, I think, and in front of them three with helmets, one with a long, straight, red feather in his hat, and the last with a low cap.

"By God!" cried the sergeant. "That's him! That's Boney, the one with the gray horse. Aye, I'll lay a month's pay on it."

I strained my eyes to see him, this man who had cast that great shadow over Europe which darkened the nations for five-and-twenty years, and which had even fallen across our out-of-the-world little sheep farm, and had dragged us all—myself, Belle and Jim—out of the lives that our folk had lived before us. As far as I could see he was a dumpy, square-shouldered kind of man and he held his double glasses to his eyes with his elbows spread very wide out on each side. I was still staring when I heard the catch of a man's breath by my side, and there was Jim, his eyes glowing like two coals and his face thrust over my shoulder.

"That's he, Jock," he whispered. "Yes, that's Boney," said I.

"No, no; it's he, This De Lapp or De Lissac, or whatever his devil's name is. It is he."

Then I saw him at once. It was the horseman with the high red feather in his hat. Even at that distance I could have sworn, to the slope of his shoulders and the way he carried his head. I clapped my hand upon Jim's sleeve, for I could see that his blood was boiling at the sight of the man, and that he was ready for any tussle. But at that moment Napoleon seemed to lean over and say something to De Lissac, and the party wheeled and dashed away, while there came the bang of a gun and a white spray of smoke from a battery along the ridge. At the same instant the assembly was blown in our village, and we rushed for our arms and fell in. There was a burst of firing all along the line, and we thought that the battle had begun, but it came really from our fellows cleaning their pieces, for their priming was in some danger of being wet from the damp night.

From where we stood it was a sight now that was worth coming over the seas to see. On our own ridge was the checker of red and blue, stretching right away to a village over two miles from us. It was whispered from man to man in the ranks, however, that there was too much of the blue and too little of the red, for the Belgians had shown on the day before that their hearts were too soft for the work, and we had twenty thousand of them for comrades. Then even our British troops were half made up of militiamen and recruits, for the pick of the old Peninsula regiments were on the ocean in transports, coming back from some ill-fated expedition with the king of America. But for all that we could see the beatitudes of the Guards, two strong brigades of them and the bonnets of the Highlanders, and the blue line of the German legion, and the red line of the British brigades, and the green line of the green-dot regiment, and we knew that, come what might, these were men who would bid where they were placed, and that they had a man to lead them who would place them where they should bid.

WARNS AGAINST OVER-CONFIDENCE

Chairman Crow Points Out Danger of Inactivity.

TAKE NOTHING FOR GRANTED

Says Enemy Can Get Foothold Only Through Republican Workers Lessening Efforts—Discusses Ticket.

Philadelphia, Oct. 15.—A sweeping victory for the Republican ticket in Pennsylvania is indicated by reports received from different sections of the state. The addition of hundreds of thousands of women voters to the ranks of those who will cast ballots at the election next month, means a greater Republican majority, and it will not be surprising if Harding and Coolidge carry Pennsylvania by one-half million plurality.

STATE CHAIRMAN CROW. Who Asks Republicans to Keep Fighting All the Time.

It looks as favorable to the Republicans not only in Pennsylvania but throughout the country, that the average Republican is in danger of becoming negligent in the matter of casting his vote, and in asking his neighbor to turn out on November 2d. This feeling of supreme confidence seems to have caught the Republicans everywhere, and the Republicans of Pennsylvania, perhaps, are more likely to be affected than those in states which do not give so big a Republican majority in presidential years.

Republican State Chairman Crow is sounding a warning against over-confidence and he is anxious that Pennsylvania does not lag behind in piling up a decisive Republican majority merely because Republican voters are taking too much for granted.

"Often times a ticket is jeopardized through the neglect of its friends," said Chairman Crow the other day in going over the situation. "It is true, everything looks very at the present time, but our enemies are busy day in and day out and it will not do for any of us to give them the slightest opportunity for a foothold. It behooves every Republican, therefore, to keep fighting all the time."

Republican Principles Needed.
"The people of Pennsylvania are not going to permit the atmosphere to become belittled by the enemy injected outside issues into the campaign. The real issue after all, and the one that affects Pennsylvania greater than anything else, is the tariff. The country needs a restoration of Republican principles to put it again on a solid foundation, and I mean by a solid foundation, plenty of work, a full dinner pail, without excessive cost in filling the dinner pail."

"Nor should Pennsylvania voters forget the fact that when they pick up the ballot this year they will find on it a sure ticket of excellent quality. We are proud of the nominees made in this important year. The state ticket is headed by Senator Penrose, whose services to the state and nation are so well known that they need not be gone into. No man has advocated the Republican policy of the protective tariff under which the industries of Pennsylvania and those of the nation have prospered, as has Senator Penrose. He stands like a rock against the present incompetent, extravagant and bungling Democratic administration."

Splendid Candidates.
"The candidate for Auditor General, Mr. Samuel S. Lewis, is a lawyer of ability and thoroughly acquainted with the duties of the Auditor General's office. He is a man who will give the people fine services and an administration of the important office of Auditor General, such as will prove beneficial to the taxpayers of the Commonwealth."

"Hon. Charles A. Snyder, the nominee for State Treasurer, is peculiarly fitted to take up the duties of the office. He is now the Auditor General and it is unnecessary to mention the fact that the Auditor General of Pennsylvania left behind a record of superior ability as General Snyder, and his friends will be able to point to after he turns over the reins of the place to his successor."

The candidates for Congressmen at large, Messrs. Garland, Burke, Walcott and Laughlin, are real Republicans standing for the principle of the party, and their experience at Washington will go far towards equipping them to assist in the great work of reconstruction about to begin when the Republican control of the affairs of the national capital. A voter, accordingly, will make no mistake in voting into the booth and voting the straight Republican ticket."

A VERY PRESENT HELP.

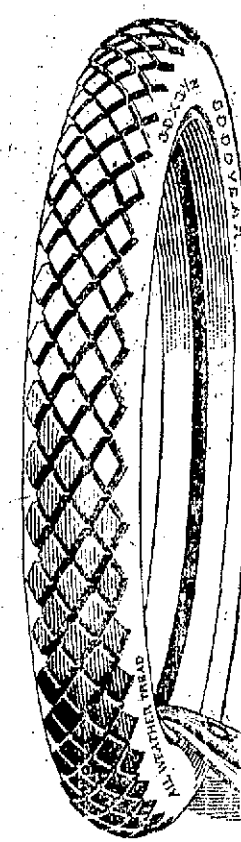

"It's when a man is in trouble that he realizes the value of a wife."

"Sure! He can put all his property in her name."

But He Got It.
Her help was protruding. And it caught him in a joint; she said she meant it for a joke, but he didn't see the point.

Improve Your Digestion.
If you have weak digestion or are generally of weak, let at least five hours elapse between meals, eat nothing between meals. Drink an abundance of water. Take one of Chamberlain's Tablets immediately after supper. Do this and you will improve your digestion—Ady.

RAPID GROWTH IN CONSUMPTION OF OLEOMARGARINE

Production for Year 1929 Likely to Exceed That for Twelve Months Ending June 30, 1914.

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 16.—Americans are using well over 150 per cent more oleomargarine today than they were six years ago, according to the statement of E. P. Kelly, maker of a nut oleomargarine in an address before several hundred merchants in this city.

Mr. Kelly traced the rapid development made in the manufacture of margarine since the outbreak of the war and predicted a continued and even increased dependence by the public upon reputable margarine products in the next year.

Four years ago there were from 35 to 40 factories making margarine, Mr. Kelly said. The latest report of the Institute of Independent Margarine Manufacturers places the present number of margarine producing concerns at 73. He explained that this increase in production is due in large part to the fact that many companies expanded their output by erecting additional factories in different districts.

Mr. Kelly presented the following official figures showing that for the year ending June 30, 1914, the output was 144,021,276 pounds and for 1919 it was 259,216,571 pounds. He said it is safe to estimate a production of 300,000,000 pounds for the year ending June 30, 1920.

Grip. Grip usually starts just the same as a cold with a watery discharge from the nose. You are much more likely to contract the grip when you have a cold. For that reason when grip is present you should go to bed as soon as you feel that you are taking cold and stay in bed until fully recovered. Which should not be long if you take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Three days in bed now is better than three weeks later on.—Adv.

She Says It Can't Be Beat. Deep seated coughs that get hold of one in Autumn should be stopped now or they may continue all winter. Mrs. Wm. A. Davis, R. F. D. 1, Short Creek, W.
